

CUTTING

Affray Occurs South Of City
On Saturday

In Which Mr. William R. Wing
Was Slashed

By A Knife In Hands Of Aaron Gotshall

Officer Arrests Man Who Did
The Cutting

And His Hearing Will Occur
Later

Mr. William R. Wing, a well-known farmer residing just south of the city, was the victim of a most vicious assault at the hands of Aaron Gotshall Saturday afternoon and as a result the latter was arrested on a charge of cutting with intent to wound and was locked up in the Knox county jail. It appears that Gotshall had been working for Mr. Wing and according to the story of the latter he appeared on Mr. Wing's farm Saturday afternoon in an intoxicated condition and demanded the money coming to him. Mr. Wing stated he would be compelled to come to town and secure the money from the bank and would pay him in the evening. To this Gotshall objected and without any warning grabbed a number of stones and threw them at Mr. Wing, one striking him under the right eye and inflicting a bad injury. Gotshall then ran up to Mr. Wing and taking a large pen knife from his pocket slashed the latter on the right side of the cheek and on the left side of the neck. By this time William Milligan, who was assisting Mr. Wing, was on the scene of the conflict and Gotshall seeing Milligan started after him. The result was that Milligan was chased the entire distance to his home.

After the cutting the authorities in Mt. Vernon were notified and Deputy Sheriff Woolson hastened to the scene in a buggy. He found Gotshall at his home, but the latter closed the door and refused to admit the officer. However, Gotshall soon changed his mind and admitted the deputy sheriff who promptly placed the man under arrest. Gotshall was brought to the city and locked up in the county jail.

Later in the afternoon Mr. Wing appeared at the office of Squire Herbert C. Wood and swore to an affidavit charging Gotshall with cutting with intent to wound. If convicted under this statute it means an imprisonment in the penitentiary from one to twenty years.

Gotshall was unable to give bond and was locked up in jail to await a hearing before the justice of the peace.

Gotshall was brought out before Squire Wood at ten o'clock Monday morning to answer to a charge of cutting with intent to wound. The defendant would enter no plea and stated that he wanted Hon. F. V. Owen to defend him. As Mr. Owen was out of the city, Squire Wood ordered Gotshall locked up in the county jail and he will not be arraigned until the return of Mr. Owen to the city.

The effort to run two cars by each other on the same track is still among the practical impossibilities in this country.

Into Servitude

Boston, Mass., July 25—Miss Rose Cleveland, in her investigation of the lineage of the Cleveland family, finds that the great-grandfather of Grover Cleveland was sold into servitude in Canada for 16 gallons of rum. His great-grandfather, Richard Falley, was kidnapped on the island Guernsey when 10 years old and brought to Massachusetts, where he was bound out till he was 21 years of age.

With twenty men and women, Richard was taken to Canada and sold to a woman in Montreal as a servant. The Indians received 16 gallons of rum for young Falley. A few months later he got aboard a ship bound for Boston and returned to Massachusetts.

Items Of Interest From
The Court House

Sheriff Parker was called out at an early hour Sunday morning to assist in locating a horse and buggy the property of the Ridenour Brothers of Green Valley. It was the supposition that the rig had been stolen. The young men hitched the horse on East High street, near the Cooper theatre, early in the evening and it was quite late when one of the brothers went after the rig. It was not there and the man supposed that his brother had taken the horse and buggy and started home. The brother went home, but when he arrived he found his brother had not returned home. Later the other brother came home walking and so it was the supposition that the horse and buggy had been stolen. Sheriff Parker was notified about 2 o'clock Sunday morning and started out in search of the rig. He found the horse and buggy on South Gay street hitched to a tree. The horse had been driven during the night, but had not been ill-treated. Sheriff Parker notified the Ridenour Brothers and they came to the city at 3 a. m. Sunday and secured their property.

DRIVEN MAD

Was A Woman By Desertion
Of Husband

Pittsburg, Penn., July 25—Through the arrest this morning of Mrs. Caroline Harkins, on the assumption that she had gone insane, the story became known of how, yesterday, her husband of the last 26 years and the father of her four grown children, had deserted her when he was told there was negro blood in her veins.

An aged relative was visiting Mrs. Harkins, and in a moment of pique informed Harkins that his wife's great-grandmother was a mulatto. Harkins put on his hat, shook hands with his wife and informed her she would never see him again. He then left and Mrs. Harkins went into hysterics. When arraigned before Magistrate Alpern this morning she told her story.

Mrs. Harkins acknowledged that it is true that there is some negro blood in her veins, but declared it is so slight that she has always associated with members of the Caucasian race.

MAN

May Become The Head Of Wellesley College

Boston, Mass., July 25—A movement is on foot to bring about the appointment of a man for president of Wellesley College. The majority of the men members of the Board of Trustees who outnumber the women members favor a man. Bishop Lawrence, vice president of the Board of Trustees, favors a man.

The women on the Board of Trustees want a woman. The alumni of the famous college are marshaling their forces to fight the appointment of a man as Miss Carolina Hazard's successor, and thus break the traditions of the college.

The conflict of opinion as to whether a man should or should not head the school, it may now be said on the best authority, was the real reason why Miss Hazard decided finally to lay down the burden of the work she carried on with such conspicuous success.

Illness, it is admitted, was a contributing cause of the resignation of Miss Hazard, but she had been fully aware for a long time of the growing feeling, especially among the men connected with the college, in favor of a man as its head, and in order not to be in the way of the proposed change, she stepped down and out.

SMALL BLAZE

Called Out The Fire Department On Saturday Afternoon

The fire department was called to the Koons tenement apartments on Coshocton Ave. at about four o'clock Saturday afternoon where a small fire broke out. The blaze was discovered before it had gained much headway and the firemen, by timely work, soon extinguished it before much damage had been done. The fire is thought to have originated from a cook stove which was burning in one of the rooms of the building. The woodwork of the kitchen was somewhat burned and blackened but aside from this, no damage was done.

CORONER

At Lexington Renders Remarkable Verdict

Lexington, Ky., July 25—Leonard Cornman, aged 27, stepson of William Lewis, of Owenton, Ky., was found dead with his skull fractured, on the Lexington and Versailles Interurban line near here last night.

Coroner Kiser held an inquest this afternoon and the verdict of the jury, hastily found, was that, "the body before us is that of an unknown man who came to his death from an unknown cause."

The theory of the police is that Cornman, losing his way after getting off the city car, staggered over the Versailles road and was struck by Interurban Car No. 110, which left the Lexington station for Versailles at 10 o'clock last night.

Coroner Kiser will, it is stated, tonight, be requested tomorrow to reopen the inquest on the grounds of new information and an effort will be made to fix the responsibility for death.

SUNFLOWER PHILOSOPHY

You can't make a fox terrier out of a cur by cutting off its tail.

A hammock loafer may not be any lazier than other varieties, but looks lazier.

The people seem to be improving a little. They care less for political meetings than formerly.

After a man is elected to office his attempts at reform are about as effective as your attempts to catch fish.

There is no denying that an invalid gets a good deal of consolation in telling of the great things he would do if he were well.

Most people have the notion that ice cream and cake in summer, and oysters and celery in winter, are enough for a big time.

After reading some of the notes they leave behind, one is at least better able to understand how the world sustains some of the loss it suffers by the suicide route.

NAME WANTED FOR

AIR NAVIGATORS
What shall we call the men who launch themselves into the ocean of air and become fellow voyagers with the birds? asks an exchange. At present there is a multiplicity of names to choose from—aeroplanists, aeronauts, aviators, birdmen, sky-men, sky pilots, etc. but it remains to be seen whether one of these or some happier word, coinage not as yet indicated, will come into general and popular use. Judging from the American press, the word aviator, veiling in its Latin garb the birdlike semblance of the new invader of the air, seems to be the favorite.

An Englishman has proposed that, following the analogy of seamen and landmen, the term of airmen would be most appropriate for the pioneers in the new form of transit. If the reference to the bird rather than to the air be preferred, birdmen would seem to meet the requirements, while sky-men might be offered as another equivalent for airmen.

As to the machine for flying, airboat is naturally recommended, following the analogy of sea vessels, but as motorboat is already appropriated to water craft, a suitable parallel to steamboat is as yet lacking. Perhaps air motor, airmotorist and airmotoring may also be considered as candidates for honor in the new names demanded by a new art and science.

In the case of the word velocipede, familiar a few decades ago, the mouth-filling name soon gave way to bicycle, bike and wheel, the tendency to simplicity and brevity being conspicuously evident in this case. The evolution of words applicable to air transit will probably show a like tendency in response to the demand for brevity and convenience.

TWO LARGE RUBBER BISCUITS

Two of the largest, if not the largest, rubber biscuits ever shipped from the Amazon territory, were received here recently, says the Indianapolis Star. The total weight of the two biscuits is 766 pounds, and at the present market value of up river fine Para, viz., $3 per pound, they represent a value of $2,298. The usual run of these biscuits averages about 120 to 180 pounds, and included in the same lot was a small biscuit which weighed as little as 4 1/2 ounces.

The rubber is taken from the tree (Hevea Brasiliensis) somewhat after the fashion in which maple trees are tapped in this country, and is then poured over a long pole or paddle, underneath which a smoking fire of coconut leaves has been lighted. The first layer of rubber is congealed on the pole, and afterward a second and third, and so on until the biscuit is completed.
